[Create New Group: Jump Page Mock-Up]

[This standard main site page appears when a Curriki member clicks “Create New group” or “Create a New Group” or “About Creating a New Group on Curriki” or similar buttons/links. The images to be featured on this page will require us setting up a “sample” group once the tools are live, and capturing screen grabs from that sample group. Note that the dark blue text below is on-screen text, whereas bracketed black text is descriptive of page content/layout.]

[page intro] Creating a group in Curriki is a great way to develop a small community within the larger global education and learning community.

Your group can be based on shared interests, organizational affiliations, a specific curriculum development project, or whatever activity you feel will benefit from a shared space for a group of Curriki members.

[sub-head] WHAT CAN CURRIKI GROUPS DO?

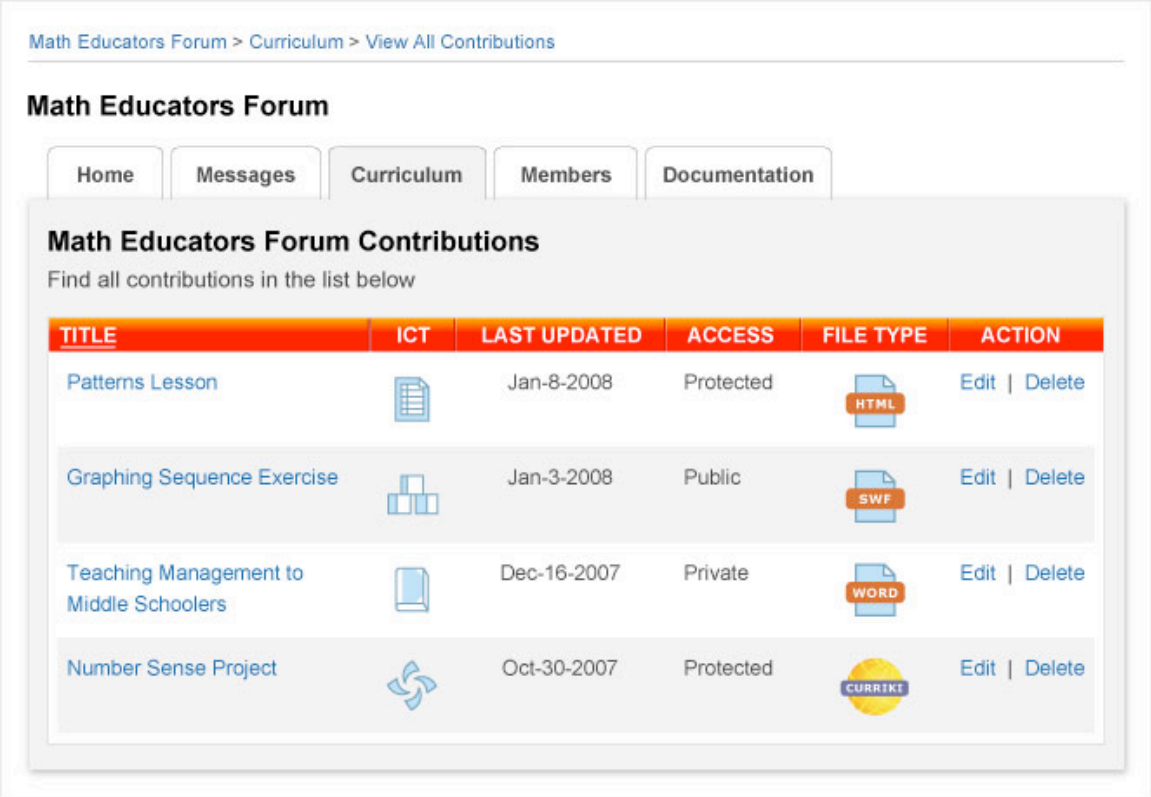

- Share a group space for accessing group tools and resources
- Collaborate on building and editing curriculum
- Use a message board to communicate about the group in general or about specific group projects
- Grow to include new members

- Highlight group curricula and activities for use or participation by the rest of the Curriki community

[Once we have some groups, we may want to link from this location to the Browse Groups page or to some good exemplar groups, providing access to a sample “real” group space.]

[sub-head] WHEN YOU CREATE A GROUP IN CURRIKI…

- You create a space for the work of a project group, including the following pages, which are organized for your group in a tabbed display:
  - Home
  - Messages
  - Curriculum
  - Members
- You take on the role of Group Leader, which means you can:
  - Edit information about the group
  - Accept new members into your group
  - Control special content sections that display in your group’s pages
  - Help define and document best practices for the group

  - Participate in the Curriki Group Leaders Forum

- Your group's space gets its own web address for easy sharing and access.

[sub-head] GET STARTED

- For more detailed information about creating a group in Curriki, visit the Groups section of the Curriki Help Collection.

- If you are going to create a group in Curriki, it's important to:

  - Know that Curriki groups can be featured and linked to from various places on the site, such as the home page or the "Browse Groups" page.

  - Recognize your commitment – as the group's creator and leader – to making your group a useful and active area for its members and for the wider Curriki community.

  - Be prepared to commit about two hours per month to maintaining your group space and proactively building your group.
